In our daily life, it's always necessary to help others around us.

In my neighborhood, there is an old woman. She lives alone because her only kid goes abroad. One day, I saw her cleaning the windows by herself on my way home. She lived on the second floor, so it was very dangerous for an old lady to do the cleaning job. And I could easily find that her body was shaking. Then I knocked at her door without thinking twice. The old lady was very surprised to see me. I explained to her that I wanted to help her with the housework. On that day, I did have a great house cleaning and the small house finally became tidy and warm. The old lady was moved a lot.

By doing some tiny things, I hope the people around me can feel the bright side of the world. I also think helping someone can bring me much happiness and satisfaction. As a result, it makes my life more meaningful.

My son is nine years old. Now he is in Grade Three. One day after coming home from school, he happily told me that he asked his classmates to turn off the lights for an hour. In our family, we have some rules to follow. We get together and watch one TV every night. We try not to take a shower for too long. In the evening, my son and I walk for an hour. When my son was only three, I began to teach him to do some small things at home. I told him how to take care of flowers, how to plant vegetables in our garden. Later, I tried to explain to him how even small actions could make big changes. He and some of his friends even watered and cared for trees together in our neighborhood.

Actually, I always think that kids need our help to know more about nature. And I believe that they will do well in protecting the environment if they have a deep love of nature.

Do you know World Sleep Day? Well, it is on March 21st. And the day asks people to think about the importance of good and healthy sleep. Enough sleep helps the body grow and develop. According to a survey, for students aged from 10 to 17, about eight to nine hours' sleep every night is needed.

But many students don't get enough sleep because of early school start times and lots of homework. For some students, they worry about their schoolwork and can't fall asleep quickly. For others, they may even keep awake all night.

These sleeping problems bring great trouble to teenagers' lives. Then how to get good sleep habits? Here is some advice: First, don't drink anything that makes you excited late in the day. Then, sleep at the same time each night. Finally, sleep in a comfortable place that is dark and quiet.
