Webcasts (网络直播), which are real time broadcasts on the Internet, have made a hit recently. Many famous stars are often seen interacting (互动) with their fans through them. But have you ever heard of a teacher broadcasting his or her courses online? The question leads to a heat discussion about the kind of teaching methods different people prefer.

 Johnson	I'd love to take online courses, as they are efficient (高效的) and well directed. We can choose the classes we are interested in and the teachers whose teaching methods are suitable (合适的) for us. Besides, online courses also provide us with a platform to share education materials and deal with problems. We are able to get the teacher's reply in time when we have trouble. It helps us study more efficiently.
 Laura	The topic reminds me of my biology teacher, Mr. Li, whose teaching style was widely admired by us. He insisted on scientific facts, but was also full of imagination. He loved to ask difficult questions about our previous (之前的) lessons, and we always gave wrong answers. He would stare at us through thick glasses, then told us the correct answers in a proud voice. During the class, he always announced some critical (批判性的) comments toward the textbook and told us funny stories to draw our attention.
 Leo	Our English teacher Ms. Jia is wise and humorous. She often uses her smart phone to webcast what we learnt in class in an interesting way. She may ask some of us to make conversations with her online. It offers us more time to practice speaking English. Besides, we can make a video while the teacher is summarizing and explaining the difficult points. By watching it again and again, we can understand them better. The new teaching method has helped me make great progress.

- () 26. Through webcasts, the famous stars _____.
- A. communicate with their fans B. introduce good online courses
C. discuss with their teachers
- () 27. Johnson believes _____ can help him be an efficient learner.
- A. interesting online questions B. suitable education materials
C. in-time solutions to his problems
- () 28. Mr. Li usually leads the students to review lessons _____.
- A. by checking scientific facts B. by asking difficult questions
C. by telling funny stories
- () 29. In Leo's opinion, the English teacher was _____.

- A. humorous B. imaginative C. understanding

() 30. We can know that _____ from the passage.

- A. Johnson likes to help others out online
B. Laura always believes what is said in the textbook
C. Leo thinks webcasting is a great way to learn English

There is no doubt that e-sports are on the rise. Just like soccer, basketball, baseball, e-sports has become very popular around the world.

The word e-sports is short for electronic sports. But it involves more than just children playing games in their bedrooms. In e-sports, teams of gamers play electronic games in front of big audience (观众) and compete for millions of dollars in prizes.

About 17 years ago, playing computer games against each other became a more professional thing and was given its own name. Now e-sports have turned into a big industry.

According to the BBC, the prize money of e-sports competitions reached 0.65 billion yuan last year. They were watched by about 320 million people and were predicted to almost double its audience to nearly 600 million by 2020. China listed as an officially recognized sport in 2003. And in 2016, the country even made it a new major for vocational schools. It means that students may choose to learn e-sports after they graduate from high school.

Big companies and some traditional sports clubs have created their own e-sports teams. Famous soccer clubs like Paris Saint-Germain and Manchester City hire professional e-sports gamers.

Playing computer games for your job might sound like a dream come true. But don't be fooled. Only top players can make a living from e-sports. And they have to put in a lot of hard work and training. According to the BBC, some players might train for up to 14 hours a day to make sure they have quick reactions (反应). Players might make more than 300 actions per minute, so they have to be able to manage a few tasks at the same time.
