Music plays an important part in many cultural and social activities. People use it to express feelings and ideas. Music is a performing art. It is different from paintings and poems. Music composers need musicians to explain the meaning of their works by performing them.

Blues

It is seen as the start of American popular music which expresses mostly sad feelings from the difficult lives. It is usually sung by African American people in the northern US, but it is popular with all Americans.

Country Music

Coming from the countryside in the southern United States, it shows simple themes describing daily lives and how people feel. Many people enjoy the music because of the emotions expressed by country music songs.

Rock Music

This music style was influenced by the blues and country music. It was first known as rock and roll in the 1950s. Since then, there have been many rock bands singing rock songs. They are usually quite loud and even noisy but are widely enjoyed around the world.

The reasons for the popularity of American music are its strong beat and powerful meanings. Most of its lyrics are in English and sometimes people translate them into other languages.

After a whole week's busy work, I was finally able to sit in a restaurant close to my home on Friday night. Usually it should be the busiest hours for the restaurant but I didn't see plenty of people at that time. I seated myself at a small square table, ordered a cup of coffee and enjoyed the short time of rest.

While I was waiting for the waiter to serve, an old foreigner with long hair caught my attention. He moved toward the fridge slowly, opened the door and took out a bottle of orange juice. It might take me a second to do these but he spent a few minutes.

He sat back on his chair and prepared to uncover the bottle but that seemed quite difficult for him. Clearly, I knew that there must be something wrong with his hands or arms. Without thinking twice, I went up to him and offered help.

Just as he was trying to talk back, the cover had been taken off the bottle. What happened next really surprised me. All of a sudden, he got mad, stood up and left the restaurant without a word of thanks, leaving me there wondering why my help would end up like that.

Later in the day when I told this experience to my mother and asked her why the man did that, my mother asked me to think in his position. "Perhaps he is able to uncover the bottle without anyone's help", said my mother. "What you did made him seem unable to do his own things, you hurt his self-esteem."

Sometimes we go out of our way to do something for others and we think it is helpful. However, we are supposed to think carefully if others really need our help before we decide to lend a hand.

() 51. After a week's hard work, the writer went to the restaurant to _____.

- A. see many people
- B. offer help
- C. get relaxed

() 52. The writer noticed the foreigner because _____.

- A. he wore strange clothes
- B. he moved very slowly

C. he chose some orange juice

() 53. The foreigner might think _____ when the writer was helping him.

A. he didn't need any help

B. he did something wrong

C. he should say thanks politely

() 54. The underlined word "self-esteem" might mean _____.

A. 权利

B. 情感

C. 自尊

() 55. The best title for the passage is _____.

A. Think before Help

B. Believe in Yourself C. Always Praise Others
