VI. 阅读理解 (二) (每小题 2 分, 满分 10 分)

阅读下面短文, 根据短文内容回答问题。

Many of you may have had the experience of fighting with homework until late at night. When this happens, you might wish that you could just leave the homework as it is and go to bed.

News

On Oct 28, Zhejiang worked out a draft guideline (方案草案) for giving students homework. The guideline has 33 measures(措施) for both schools and parents.

If their parents agree, primary school students can refuse to do homework after 9 pm, and junior high school students can turn it down after 10 pm. Teachers can't punish (惩罚) students for doing so. This has raised a great number of discussion.

Pros(正方):

- We will have more free time to do things we like.
- We will be able to exercise more, develop our interests and relax.

Cons(反方):

- Homework helps us get the information, and also examine what we have learned.
- Without homework, teachers may find a new way to supervise (监督)

More about the guideline

The guideline asks teachers to create no more than one teacher-parent chat group on social media, such as WeChat. What's more, they cannot give homework in the chat group or ask parents to check homework.

61. What was the news on Oct 28 in Zhejiang?

62. What time can primary student stop doing their homework?

63. Why do some of people disagree with the idea?(One reason is OK.)

64. Can teachers use the WeChat to give homework?

65. Is your homework more or less? How long does it take to finish your homework every day?
